In Search of a Job.
Famous Last Words.
The Mighty Amazon.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

FORMER President Coolidge was in New York city Thursday. Reporters say he is considering "a job," preferably some executive position.

Every executive position worth while means entering the employ of a corporation.

It should not be necessary for a man who has been president of the United States to look for any job or go to work for any corporation.

ELECTION to the presidency should entitle a man at the end of his term to a pension, sufficient to make any other job unnecessary for the rest of the man's life, a pension certainly not less than $50,000, and preferably the full amount of the president's pay.

The people owe this not only to the presidency, but to their own self-respect.

ALIONS, "let us go," was the last word uttered by Marshal Foch. It is the first word of the French national hymn that he heard so often, the hymn to which the revolutionary soldiers marched from the south of France into Paris. "Allons enfants de la patrie," etc.

The last words of great men, piously collected, have little value. The great men probably did not know what they were saying. Mehr Licht, "more light," were the last words of Goethe. Frederick the Great's last words are supposed to be te te d'armes, "head of the army." He often spoke French in preference to German.

PITT, whose genius kept Napoleon out of England, said as he died, "My country, how I leave thee." He was worried about the future.

What a man does while he lives is more important than what he says when he dies.

GERMAN scientists discover that the great Amazon, so wide at the mouth that boats on it go out of sight of land, connects with the river La Plata, forming the greatest river chain on earth.

That will interest thousands who, as boys, read Kingley's "Westward Ho!" and lived, in imagination, on the Amazon and the Orinoco.

ELIHU ROOT, great lawyer, says the world court is now an almost continuous tribunal. The statement is interesting, and you may add to it that the things that continuous world court would do to the United States if Uncle Sam ever submitted himself to its rulings would be continuous and quite expensive.

HOWEVER, the "right people" which means big people, including international financiers, want the United States in the world court in order that investments made recklessly abroad may be protected by court decision and backed by United States credit.

For that good reason the United States WILL PROBABLY GET INTO THE WORLD COURT in spite of Senator Borah and others who think George Washington was right. George

James Kinney, 40, Believed Victim of Robbers.

IRONTON, O., March 23.—(INS)—An automobile fire here today, which resulted in the death of James Kinney, 40, whose charred body was found on the rear seat, caused an investigation to ascertain whether the man had been slugged, robbed and then set on fire.

Blood stains in the motor car led officers to believe Kinney was attacked as he drove up to his garage to store the automobile. When firemen were summoned the motor was racing and lights on the car were ablaze.

Residents in the neighborhood of the garage stated the car entered the narrow alleyway two hours before the blaze was discovered.

Firemen had difficulty in extinguishing the fire because of oil and gasoline which had run onto the pavement from parts of the machine.

BUNGALOW FLOATS

White's Creek, Small
Stream, Becomes
Roaring Torrent.

ROCKWOOD, Tenn., March 23.—Twenty-eight Boy Scouts encamped in a bungalow on White's creek, a small stream six miles south of here, were reported swept away by flood waters today, and probably drowned.

Boys Scream for Help.

The boys were last seen at 5:30 this morning when a rescue party of Rockford men, including the fathers of two of the boys in the encampment, reached White creek just in time to see the bungalow float away in a swirling torrent, with the boys and their scoutmaster on the roof, screaming for help.

The tiny stream this morning had become a roaring torrent an eighth of a mile wide. Several of the boys were reported to have escaped from the camp house and climbed into trees. However, they could not be seen from the banks of the creek.

News of the boys' peril was first brought here by a taxi driver who had observed the rapid rise of the water due to a virtual cloudburst in this section.

Boats Attempt Rescue.

As soon as the disaster was learned here, the town was alarmed by the frantic tolling of church bells and the sounding of the town's fire siren. Within a few hours the banks of the stream were crowded with townspeople, including the frantic parents of the boys.

Persons standing on the edge of the stream could hear the boys crying for help, but they could not see them. Shortly before noon boats were being rushed from the Tennessee river to attempt to rescue the imperiled scouts and their scoutmaster.

Amusements

CERAMIC BOOKS 'MOTHER MACHREE'

Belle Bennett, one of the most popular character actresses in the United States, is admirably cast for the maternal part in "Mother Machree," Fox Film's version of Ruda Johnson Young's song and story of mother love, which begins a three-day run at the Ceramic Theater Monday. John Ford, creator of "The Iron Horse," "3 Bad Men" and other screen masterpieces, directed the picture.

Miss Bennett, who won international fame by her unforgettable performance in "Stella Dallas," brings to this sweetest of Irish stories a broad human sympathy and a full complement of mother-love drawn from the recesses of her own soul. Studio critics have pronounced her present characterization one of the most touching roles she has ever attempted. Humor and pathos are adroitly blended in a swiftly-moving plot which reaches a smashing climax when Miss Bennett is confronted by the necessity of claiming or rejecting her own son.

The Irish scenes and sequences are faithfully reproduced, as many of the backgrounds were filmed in Galway. The cast includes such outstanding stars of the screen as Ethel Clayton, Victor McLaglen, the Captain Flagg of "What Price Glory," Ted McNamara, Eulalie Jensen and Constance Howard, while Philippe De Lacey, one of the most beautiful and remarkable child actors is cast in the role of Brian, the son of Mother Machree.

CAPTAIN SWAGGER COMES TO STATE

Rod La Rocque takes to the air in his newest Pathe comedy romance, "Captain Swagger," which comes to the State theater Monday and in which Sue Carol is featured as leading woman.

In the earlier sequences of this story, the handsome and popular star is seen to excellent advantage as an expert in tailspins and nose dives, who does his part to make the world safe for democracy as a flier with the Lafayette Escadrille. He believes airplanes will be common as automobiles in the near future.

Sue Carol plays opposite La Rocque in this exciting story, which brings in the war zone of France and reaches a dramatic climax in the night clubs of New York. As Rod's war-time mechanic and peace-time valet, Victor Potel provides some rare comedy scenes, while Ulrich Haupt and Richard Tucker have other important roles.

E. H. Griffith, who guided Rod La Rocque in two previous Pathe successes, "Hold 'Em Yale," and "Love Over Night," directed "Captain Swagger" and Hector Turnbull produced it.

JUNGLE MYSTERY AT AMERICAN

"Stark Mad," Warner Bros.' latest special production, comes to the American theater Monday, for a run of one week. "Stark Mad" is the most uncanny of all the shiver-and-shake laugh-makers of the screen. Clever direction adds to the reality of the unreality—one senses every shriek, stutter, growl and intelligible word and spellbound seems to feel the whirl of speeding arrows—rusty grating of closing doors in the ruined temple in the depths of the jungle—roar of winds—beat of rain—wash of waves—lunging tread of the huge gorilla—and all the trappings of fear. "Stark Mad" has a sterling cast in-

Rheumatism Overcome By Walking

It has been found that an especially constructed and treated pair of heel plates (one zinc and one copper) placed in the shoes of a sufferer, quickly rid the wearer of rheumatic pains, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tones up the system in general. Thus the sufferer literally "walks" his way to health. Experiments in hundreds of cases prove these heel plates to be a boon to the sufferer in most severe cases of rheumatism. Smith's Eureka Co., 221 Lee St., McKenzle, Tenn., is so anxious to prove their statement that they are willing to send any sufferer their liberal trial offer. Write them today.—Adv.

TWO $25,000 DAMAGE SUITS FILED AS AFTERMATH OF AUTO ACCIDENTS

Benjamin F. Hall, East Liverpool, and Conradine Handwork, Beloit, Institute Actions.

LISBON, O., March 23.—Two automobile accident suits have been filed in common pleas court here, each seeking $25,000 damages.

Benjamin F. Hall, who has sued Claude Nease of East Liverpool, sets forth that Nease was driving his motor car in St. Clair avenue, East Liverpool, at 8 o'clock on the night of last March 2 without headlights, and Hall had no warning that the automobile was approaching as he was walking across the street. Hall, who alleges he was knocked down and run over, says that he suffered six fractured ribs and a broken right shoulder and that part of his body is now paralyzed, as a result of the accident. He charges negligence on the part of Nease. Hall is represented by Brookes and Thompson.

Conradine Handwork, of R. F. D. No. 2, Beloit, through her counsel, Sidney L. Geiger of Alliance, has sued Chris Berger, Salem, R. F. D. 4. She has set up that at 8:15 o'clock on the night of last Sept. 8 she was a passenger in an automobile operated by Carrie Slagle, when it was driven off the brick road between Westville and Beloit. She got out of the car and walked around it, and as she took the first step on the brick road she was struck by an automobile driven by the defendant, her hands going through the headlights, she alleges Berger, the petition says, was driving on the left side of the road, and was operating his motor car in a careless manner. Serious injuries were suffered by the plaintiff, the petition sets up.

RULINGS MADE IN SIX ACTIONS

Leave to the defendants to plead by April 8 has been granted in the action filed by Harry Drier against the Standard Porcelain company. This is an action for a receiver and foreclosure.

Attorney P. V. Mackall has been appointed guardian for the defendant in the divorce case filed by Charles D. Erwin against his wife, Catherine G. Erwin, a minor.

CANFIELD ROAD BIDS ARE ASKED

Bids will be opened by the state highway department at the Southern hotel, Columbus, at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, March 29, for the improvement of the Columbiana-Canfield road north of Salem. The pavement is to be 18 feet in width on a 30-foot roadway. The estimate for concrete is $91,981.59 and for a bituminous roadway $77,033.89.

The Columbiana county section of this road was improved last year.

Payment of Judgment Asked.
During the September term of court 1927 The Russel company obtained a judgment against F. H. Harold and others of Columbiana for $387.22 and costs, and an execution was later issued. The judgment has not been satisfied, and now the plaintiff has gone into court with a petition asking that liens be marshalled, the property sold and priorities determined. The county treasurer, who is to file a record of taxes due, and the Union Banking company, of Columbiana, have been made party defendants.

Sale of Property is Petitioned.
Sale of property to satisfy a judgment for $5,405.50 and costs is sought in a petition filed in court by Feba Lewanda against Lena Breakstone and Samuel Breakstone of East Liverpool. The judgment was entered last Dec. 15 and execution has been issued on property of the defendants in East Liverpool.

COUNTY TREASURER GEORGE WARNS WRITERS OF QUESTIONABLE CHECKS

LISBON, O., Mar. 23.—People who forward questionable checks to the county treasurer for the payment of taxes, both real estate and personal, whether the latter are delinquent or not, will be compelled to pay those checks, with protest fees, and court costs as well, County Treasurer Fred George said today.

Charges were preferred at Lisbon last week against persons who issued checks without sufficient funds in the banks. When eventually were made to pay the checks, with all protest fees and court costs, charges were withdrawn by the treasurer.

It was announced today that three affidavits are to be filed next week against persons whose checks are now held by the county treasurer. The signers have been given until Monday to pay. Warning will be issued in the event payment is not made.

The county treasurer is responsible for these checks after they have been deposited and returned for lack of funds. There is no provision in law whereby the county can reimburse the treasurer.

FIVE DIVORCE CASES DISMISSED

Upon request of Attorney M. P. Speldel of Alliance, the divorce action filed by Havilla Davis against his wife, Mrs. Iza Davis, has been dismissed for want of prosecution at the cost of the plaintiff.

Similar entry has been made in the divorce case of Candace Selbert against John B. Selbert.

There has been no prosecution in the divorce action suit filed by Mrs. Anna Landis against Guy Landis, which has been dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff.

A like entry has been made in the divorce petition filed by Edward Coleman against his wife, Mrs. Rose Coleman.

Foreclosure Proceedings.

The United Counties Savings & Loan Co. of Minerva, through its counsel, S. O. The loan was secured by mortgage deed on property in Hanover township.

Grade Crossing Problem

The highway grade crossing question has been brought to the front in East Liverpool as a result of the request of the Pennsylvania Railroad company for permission to cross city streets in the proposed construction of a third track system to cope with the freight problem.

Shippers, including pottery manufacturers, who point out that traffic in the East Liverpool district is delayed because of the increase in the number of freight trains since the completion of the Bayard cut-off, have joined with the operators in urging favorable action on the request.

While not opposing the railroad improvement program, councilmen, in return for the necessary municipal approval of the three-track plan, which is expected to solve shippers' switching problems, have asked elimination of the Broadway crossing. This would mean the erection of an overhead pass, the cost of which is estimated as high as $250,000. The railroad's answer to the proposal is now awaited.

There is no argument over the fact that traffic dangers at the foot of Broadway have been increased by reason of the additional freight trains now operating over the Cleveland division of the Pennsylvania system. However, there is another side to the grade crossing question.

Notwithstanding the campaign against grade crossings, inspired by the increasing tolls at such intersections, their number has been increasing at the rate of nearly 1,000 a year. During 1927, on railways of this country, 440 grade crossings were eliminated, but 3,022 new grade crossings were created. And the statistics show that 8,500 persons are killed or injured each year at these intersections.

The railroad officials claim many of these new crossings have been established needlessly, but the public demands shorter and more convenient roads. As a result, the operators say, highway engineers, in an attempt to satisfy the public, create new death traps.

Solution of the problem seems to rest with the national, state and municipal governments, which build the highways and streets, as well as the railroads.

They Prefer Freedom

The Philippine Islands are now selling $50,000,000 worth of sugar and an equal amount of other products to the United States each year on a tariff-free basis. But the Philippines, on a moment's notice, would gladly surrender this lucrative trade advantage in exchange for their independence.

This is the attitude of the islands as expressed by Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner for the Philippines in the United States, in an article written for the March issue of the Farm Journal, national agricultural monthly, in which he urges American farmers to support the movement for Filipino independence on the grounds that they would eliminate a rapidly growing free-trade competitor from the American market.

Commissioner Guevara, however, protests strenuously against the proposal now before congress to limit free importation of Philippines sugar to 500,000 tons a year. "The Filipino people," he declares, "believe it fair and just that while they are kept under the American flag, they should be accorded economic and political equality. They protest against being within the United States politically, and without it economically."

The Filipino representative calls attention to the fact that the government is committed to recognize the independence of the Philippines eventually. And, he argues, it is to the advantage of the American farmer to bring this day to pass as soon as possible.

The Philippines, he says, have become an important factor in the American sugar, hemp, coconut, tobacco and rice markets on a free trade basis, and are now developing a competitor to be taken seriously by several sections of American agriculture.

The islands, he estimates, are producing their present crops for home consumption and exports from only about 3,300,000 acres of cultivated land, while the uncultivated area, judged to be potentially as rich, is 28,000,000 acres.

In a word, the possibilities of the Philippine Islands are such as to produce sufficient sugar to supply at least the major portion, if not the whole demand, of the American sugar market," says his Farm Journal article. "If the American farmers are of the opinion that their beet and cane sugar growers should be protected to the fullest extent, there is no other way but to close their market to Philippine sugar. But they would not, I am sure, advocate retaining the islands themselves while shutting out Philippine sugar or limiting the amount of imports."

State Building Bill Passes

The house having concurred by a vote of 92 to 20 in the senate amendments to the state office building bill, the measure now goes to the governor for his signature.

Under the terms of the measure there will be a levy of two-tenths of a mill, which will raise a sum in excess of $5,000,000, which, with the proceeds of the sales of the Wyandott building and the 99-year lease on the Hartman Hotel building, both in Columbus, is expected to meet the cost of such an office building as is needed to house many departments and bureaus now, and for years in the past, located in rented quarters.

A very satisfactory provision of the bill, as amended, is that all acts of the commission of five members to be named by the governor to select a site convenient to the statehouse and erect thereon a building, or purchase a similarly-located building, are subject to his approval. This responsibility precludes the probability that the state will be held up for a fancy price or that enthusiastic boosters of the "Civic Center" plan for beautifying the Scioto river front may bring about a situation which would not only cause expense, in loss of time at least, to the state, but also a great inconvenience to those whose business would necessitate visits to the office buildings as well as the statehouse.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 23.—The job which organized labor in America has picked out for President Hoover is to find work for the hundreds of thousands of workers whose work has been taken away from them by the introduction of machinery. Every group of the people has picked out something for the new chief executive to do, some miracle for him to perform. This assignment from labor may prove the biggest, the most difficult of all.

Various set-ups of statistics disagree on the extent of unemployment and to what extent it is seasonal, incidental, and to what extent is developing into a permanent menace unless something is done about it and quickly. The American Federation of Labor and the department of labor claim that there is very wide-spread unemployment and they blame the machine age for that situation.

It is stated confidently that this may prove the biggest of all the problems placed before President Hoover because the workers of the nation constitute by far its most important class. They represent its greatest purchasing power. While the average working man, including the white collar clerk, does not have the purchasing power of the millionaire whose income springs from dividends on stored-up labor in the form of invested wealth, there are thousands of workers to every millionaire and their combined purchasing power is vastly greater than his. If every millionaire in the country suddenly were to be erased from the picture the diminution in the nation's total purchasing power would scarcely be noted. It is not on the millionaire that the grocery stores, the department stores, even the automobile factories thrive but on the man in the street.

Perhaps the man in the street is not an apt expression to employ in this illustration. The man on the job would be a better one. He represents the wealth of the nation.

When labor-saving machinery was first introduced workmen rioted, stormed new factories, and wrecked the machines on the theory that use of mechanical devices would cost them their jobs. This phase passed because it was found that the machines increased the number of jobs available while low cost production, coupled with higher wages made it possible for the workmen to have more things. Their position was economically altered for the better. The world needed greater output.

But now, organized labor believes, a new phase has appeared. The machines have saturated the world with their output. They have been so greatly improved that they are displacing men at a greater rate than ever before. The new phase, it is believed, is the real menace of which labor saw only the phantom a century ago and a machine age really does mean definite unemployment.

It might be worth while to note in this connection that there are nearly twice as many people in the world today as there were when labor-saving devices were first introduced. That means there are more people clamoring for jobs while the machines constantly diminish the number of jobs. The entrance of women into every field of labor also has added to the demand for jobs.

A specific suggestion has been made to the president. It is that the federal government attack the problem directly by establishing a super-employment bureau, such a bureau as has never been dreamed of before. Its job would be to find work for these machine-supplanted workers. Every worker definitely superseded in his job by a machine would file his name and address and fall qualifications with this bureau. These would be sorted into classifications.

No matter how extensive the application of machinery has become or will become new industries always will be starting. A new industry, a new product in the initial stages, requires the services of men who can do things with their hands and brains. It would be the duty of the federal employment bureau to learn of every such fresh enterprise. The new industry would be urged to turn to the bureau to supply its needs. Then the bureau would pick the workers best fitted for the fresh task and put them in these jobs. Gradually, the new industry would develop machines to simplify and mechanize the manufacture of its product.

It is known that President Hoover already has given a great deal of thought to the problem and organized labor is confident that he probably is the best man in the world to undertake its solution.

Questions And Answers

By Frederic J. Haskin.

Q. What was the per capita consumption of wines and liquors in the nineties? T. H.

A. In 1890, 972,578,878 gallons of these beverages were used, or 15.53 gallons per capita.

Q. Does the word music occur in the Bible? What was the first musical instrument? L. D. N.

A. The word music occurs fifteen times in the Kings James and Revised Version of the Scriptures. It can not be definitely stated exactly what the first musical instrument was, but undoubtedly crude instruments were used by paleolithic man, a primitive flute of reindeer horns being found in a cave which was inhabited during the stone age, also many prehistoric horns of metal have been unearthed among the relics of the Bronze Age.

Q. Are there many opportunities for white Americans at Cape Colony, South Africa? J. L. D.

A. There are practically no opportunities of employment at Cape Town for Americans on account of competition with the British. There is already a surplus of white labor and there is a restriction on the labor which can be performed by white people on account of the large number of negroes. There is a restriction on the immigration of white persons who desire work. It is limited by the Union government to persons who have at least $10,000. The applicants of agricultural workers are more likely to be approved than others.

Q. How may water spots be removed from furniture? C. E. D.

A. Rub with a moist cloth on which a few drops of household ammonia have been placed. Polish with a soft cloth. A gentle rubbing with a damp cloth dipped in powdered pumice stone will also remove such a spot.

Q. How long have jewels been used in watch movements? R. J. L.

A. The use of the jewel bearings for watch pivots was introduced by Nicholas Fahr about the middle of the 18th century. Five was the first number used. This was adopted almost immediately by the Swiss watch makers. Formerly diamonds and sapphires were used entirely; rubies much later, and have not proved so satisfactory.

Q. When was Oliver Wendell Holmes appointed to the Supreme Court bench? E. R. M.

A. He was appointed Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court by President Roosevelt, December 4, 1902.

Rosalie, being an "air-minded" young person, has decided to learn to pilot an airplane. She's on hand for the occasion in a bright blue leather flying suit with black boots. She will soon find that learning to fly a plane is a little different from learning to drive an automobile if she takes the numerous tests that determine "air-worthiness." She might not be so enthusiastic over the idea if she were required to wear the unbecoming brown jumpers known before the advent of bright colored leather suits with buttons or zipper fastenings. ## NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Those lumbering block-long sight-seeing buses which parked so impudently on prominent Broadway corners, while traffic cars bawled out the little flivver slow pokes, are not having such a sweet time of it since Broadway was cleared for theater traffic.

They had to get out of the yoked zone at the hours they collected the biggest list of passengers. But they still manage to pick up enough fares to carry on, since banishment to wilderness. Filling a yap wagon is an amazing study in the slick art of the ballyhoo.

One of their biggest handicaps was the feeling of self-consciousness afflicting the first customer. It was discovered an empty bus could not be filled. Hence the aged "decoys"—gray-haired women who sit inside placidly knitting with all the Broadway hurrah about them.

The "decoys" are mostly character actresses at liberty. They are paid so much a sitting and naturally have little to do. The buses are filled by the sheer eagerness, which often becomes objectionable effrontery, on the part of the megaphoning spieler.

He is a Barker of the rowdy carnival type and is equipped with an elegant set of leather lungs, and is the sort for which you would rather arrange a little accident.

He has a way of forcing the timid inside the wagon before they realize it. The slightest pause in step brings him to your side with the alert jump of a cat to a mouse. And he pours a beguiling torrent of description into your ear while guiding you into his chariot. Most of his descriptions are so much hokey, but they do the trick. He has his troubles keeping those forced to endure the long wait from demanding their money back. In this he proves himself a diplomatist. Once the bus is filled and rolls away, another rolls up and he begins all over again: "Coney, the Bowery and Chinatown. Fast car going right out!"

The average hero would have felt slightly put out had he selected a day recently for one of those triumphal rides up Broadway. The town had a sudden shortage of ticker tape. And ticker tape makes parades these days.

Holdup artists no longer cry "Hands up!" in the night clubs, but "Touch the ceiling!" And you should see the boys and girls swallow their chewing gum and reach!

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

In the senate barber shop a few days ago one of my colleagues inquired the cause of nightmares. Of course, there are plenty of citizens of the United States who would say at once that the senators themselves are the chief cause of many nightmares!

But here comes a letter from the editor of a newspaper in Canada asking the same question. Since nightmares appear to be an international or universal complaint, it surely deserves special consideration.

Anything that interferes with restful sleep is a matter of importance. It cannot be neglected. Unless some means can be found to permit normal rest at night, there is sure to be undermining of the health.

True insomnia, as chronic failure to sleep is called, is one of the most distressing of human ailments. Babies have disturbances of sleep, due usually to wrong feeding. Ordinarily this takes the form of restlessness, rather than actual wakefulness. But grown men and women may find themselves unable to sleep the number of hours necessary for their well-being. This is serious.

The broken sleep may be a condition lasting for weeks or months. About this I shall speak again. In children we meet what is commonly referred to as "night terrors." The youngster wakes up with a scream, and sobs in fear. Because of the fright, sleep is impossible for several hours, perhaps.

There are a number of things that have this effect on the quality of sleep. The lack of ventilation of the sleeping room is a common cause for broken rest. It is essential to physical comfort to have plenty of air.

In the next place it is important to be lightly covered. If the bed clothing is too heavy, there will be such disturbance of comfort as to be disturbing to body and brain.

If there is such discomfort as I have mentioned there will be dreams and, if they are of a frightful character, there may be nightmare. A dream of burglars or murder will cause the victim to cry out in his sleep and to awaken in fright or temper.

The last time we looked it up, there were four shops in the midtown section dealing exclusively in saxophones. They either hung up the shutters or moved. And no matter how disastrous it may be for the future of music, our chin refuses to quiver a single quiver.

New York has acres of Shops No-body Sees. Yet they keep going year after year. They are in top floors of antiquated buildings and are distinguished only by faded gilt window signs, difficult to see from the street. They are dimly lit and display no show of activity. They deal in furs, old books, scalp treatments, antiques, electrical fixtures, glassware and such. Many can be reached only by long flights of stairs, and are patronized chiefly by bargain hunters. Walk up Broadway some time in the middle of the street from Herald Square and gaze at the array—but look out for the cable cars!

In theater parlance Robinson Crusoe are "two on the aisle." And when an actor knocks on an actress' dressing room door his "Are you decent?" means "Are you properly dressed for me to come in?"

It is to be hoped the talkies will not for a little while anyway adopt the typing box office methods that cost the legitimate theater much good will and patronage. They show signs of it. "The Broadway Melody," for instance, is an advertised $2 top talkie. Yet I could discover no $2 seats at the box office, but plenty of $3.50 at agencies. It is a hang-up production, and judged by average standards, the intelligent direction of Harry Beaumont and the superb acting of Bessie Love are worth $8 a seat. But in this stage of talkie experimentation, such tactics won't do. A $2 seat holder has to sit so far back in the house he leaves with the key-hole squint of a house detective.

Proposed New Department.

The drive by the National Educational association for the creation of a department of education has been on for many years, and has pushed with much assiduity in the face of indifference and suspicion. It now gains new impetus and prestige as a result of the espousal of the cause by President Hoover; and the fact that the president has in mind a department of education, health and public welfare, rather than a Simon-pure department of education, should not cause the proponents of the project disappointment. Such an enlargement of scope is likely to increase the prospect for favorable congressional action; and later on, it may be possible to subdivide the new department as the department of commerce and labor was subdivided.

Whether there is real justification for an enlargement of the cabinet of the president in the way Mr. Hoover suggests is a matter which is sure to provoke debate.

Presumably the president thought long and deeply before mentioning his plan, and his judgment carries great weight. Unquestionably, too, there are states in the union, particularly in the south, where public school facilities are far from what they ought to be, and where the opportunities for education could be great improved by federal oversight and federal monetary aid. There is room for the accomplishment of practical good.

But no matter how carefully and discreetly a department of education may be operated in the beginning, before the story is all told it will, if instituted, step out from the role of adviser and tactful helper and undertake general supervision and management of education throughout the country. If it does not do this openly it will do so indirectly and by the use of duress.

Is management of American education a part of the business of the federal government? Mr. Coolidge apparently does not think so; at any rate he has deplored emphatically an extension whatever of federal interference in state affairs and state duties; and since the founding of the republic, education has been purely a state affair.

Also the possibilities for educational despotism, particularly in the direction of enforced conformity, loom large behind the new executive proposal. They ought to be taken into consideration carefully by congress before that body takes any action.

In linking his plan for a new department of education, health and public welfare with his program for general reorganization of the executive departments, Mr. Hoover emphasizes another important question. Should the number of cabinet officers be increased or should they be decreased?

Some very good students of public affairs advocate amalgamation of the war and navy departments to form a department of national defense in which the importance of the aerial branch will be properly recognized. It is also a question whether the country would not be better off, if the department of labor were reduced to a bureau or again made part of a phantasmagoric department. As it stands today, the labor department is little more than a champion of trades unionism, a representative of a special interest. It is no more in harmony with the theory of American institutions than a special department of capital would be, and the legitimate interests of labor, of all labor, not merely of the organized part of it, should be taken care of in some other way.

It is quite possible that shrinkage rather than expansion of the total number of executive departments is desirable.—Detroit Free Press.

spoil the enjoyment of every one.

Those who have done much playing can bring to mind many occasions when embarrassing situations have arisen from husbands and wives disputing plays.

How foolish to permit a really unimportant thing such as a card game to cause cross words between a husband and wife.

But not only do married couples censure each other—often friends become caustic and disagreeable over a card table.

Enemies are made by women who are so intent upon winning the honor of top score that they apparently lose their desire to be courteous.

When any game gets this sort of hold on a person it is far from an enjoyable pastime.

Most good players think that those who are not proficient should keep out of the game with experts.

This is a pretty good plan. It may save friendships.

It is a wise course for the inexperienced player who makes many plays that irritate the expert or near expert.

The 1929 Oldsmobile is FINER THAN EVER LOWER IN PRICE

—and now it is winning greater and greater public favor in every section of the country.

With all its desirable improvements... with all its additional smartness, luxury, comfort and performance... the 1929 Oldsmobile is lower than ever in price... now only $875.

The 1929 Oldsmobile is more beautiful than ever in appearance—the result of new style refinements and new color combinations now presented in its composite bodies by Fisher.

The 1929 Oldsmobile is more luxurious, more comfortable and offers new conveniences for driver and passengers. Roominess is a feature. Seat cushions are deeper and softer. Upholsteries are richer. And the new Fisher adjustable front seat, combined with Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel, makes the driving position a matter of individual choice.

The 1929 Oldsmobile provides even more gratifying and dependable performance. Its big high-compression engine now develops 62 horsepower. Typical of its fine car design, oil is forced directly to the piston pins through rifle-drilled connecting rods—a feature heretofore characteristic of high-priced cars.

Oldsmobile was a remarkable value before. Now that it is finer than ever—and lower in price—it is the outstanding value of its class. Come and see this finer Oldsmobile. Drive it yourself. Compare it with other cars. Know why it is winning greater and greater public favor in every section of the country.

Time!—the safe measure of motor oils

Judge motor oils by using TIME as a measure.

Consider carefully the fact that a half century of refining experience is behind FREEDOM Perfect.

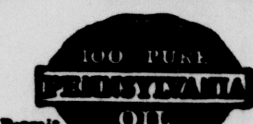

In addition, 100% Pennsylvania Crude is used exclusively in its making.

As a result, you obtain a lubricant which positively protects to temperatures 100 degrees higher than is possible with mediocre oils.

FREEDOM Perfect motor oil should always be bought by name. This makes certain you are given no other. For sale throughout this territory by responsible dealers.

six empties, is enroute to Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh Firm Low Bidder. Bids for the construction and delivery of one upper and two lower gates for Lock No. 2, Monongahela river, were opened yesterday by Colonel Jarvis J. Bain, Pittsburgh district engineer, with the result that a Pittsburgh firm was found to be the lowest bidder.

The bidders were: Independent Bridge company, Pittsburgh, $27,959.02; Nashville Bridge company, Nashville, Tenn., $30,181; Heyl & Patterson, Pittsburgh, $30,641.47; Dravo Contracting company, Pittsburgh, $33,903.17. The gates, which will require approximately 187 tons of material, are to be completed within 180 days after the contract is signed. The liquidated damages for delay have been placed at $15 per day.

Colonel Bain said that the Pennsylvania and Ohio Power and Light company is asking for a federal permit to construct a transmission line across the Mahoning river at North West avenue, Youngstown, O., 215 miles above the mouth of that stream. The Kittanning Limestone and Supply company received a federal permit to make a bank fill and place mooring pile clusters and dredge for a landing on the left bank of the Allegheny river, 4 of a mile below Market street, Kittanning, and 45.3 miles above the mouth of the river.

Gets Federal Permit. The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation received a federal permit to make a fill along the west bank of the Ohio river in Beaver county. This will extend from the Aliquippa plant of the corporation to that of the Colonial Steel company. This permit will allow the closing of the back channel of Hog Island, at one time navigable during high water stages, while the fill to be made will extend part way across the island. Rivermen believe that with the closing of this back channel more water will flow over Walory Bar, which at all times was considered one of the danger spots to navigation.

The Pittsburgh Steel company received a federal permit to drive piles and make a fill along the right bank of the Monongahela river. This fill will start at a point one mile above Lock and Dam No. 4 and 42 miles from the mouth of the river. The fill and bank protection will extend for a distance of 720 feet upstream.

Colonel Roger G. Powell, in charge of the Cincinnati district, reported that the obstruction to navigation on the Kentucky river, caused by the washout of the false work for the new highway bridge at Evelyn, Ky., has been removed. The washout was caused by recent floods. Navigation on this stream can be resumed, states the colonel.

Ocean Dredge Arrives. Colonel Powell received word from New Orleans that the government dredge boat Mallory arrived at that port and will be towed up the Mississippi river as soon as the stage of water permits. This boat will be used to deepen the channel in the Ohio river. It is an 18-inch suction dredge and formerly was in service at Wilmington, N. C. It left that port a month ago and was brought by way of Key West to New Orleans by an ocean tug. Colonel Powell is in New Orleans arranging for its departure.

JURY ACQUITS MAN ONCE HELD IN DEATH ROW

Roy Freeman, Negro, Freed in Dayton Murder Trial.

"CONFESSION" HIT

Snatched From Electric Chair by Supreme Court.

DAYTON, O., Mar. 23.—Roy Freeman, 40, Tennessee negro, who was snatched from the electric chair at the Ohio State penitentiary by a supreme court order, was free today, after the jury in his second trial found him "not guilty" of the murder of Motorcycle Patrolman William C. Horn.

Freeman declared that he was going back to Tennessee as soon as he could get the railroad fare together. Acquittal of the negro writes a new record into the criminal history of Montgomery county.

Freeman was sentenced to the electric chair last October, following a long trial, in which an alleged confession made by him, was introduced as testimony.

At his second trial this confession was not allowed to be written into the records, after arguments of defense attorneys charged that it had been obtained by "third degree" methods.

At the time of his first conviction, Freeman was removed from the county jail here to an adjoining county battle after rumors of "lynchings" were heard.

The "shoot" of Horn was Dayton's third Negro murder within a two-week period.

DEATH ROLL

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles Peterson, 60, who died yesterday morning in her home in Kountz avenue, Wellsville, will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of the Rev. D. E. Young, pastor of the First Christian church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Besides her husband she is survived by five sons, Albert of Highland avenue; Frank, and William of Kountz avenue; John of Broadway and Butler of Mansfield; two daughters, Mrs. Anna Dunlop of Erie, Pa., and Mrs. F. R. Raugh of Kountz avenue.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Mar. 23.—Stranded here, a 38-year-old man, his wife, who says she is 16, but who looks younger, and their 16-month-old baby were being cared for by police here today.

Enroute by automobile from Louisville, Ky., to Pittsburgh with another couple, the little family was left here without funds and without shelter.

The father gave his name as Harry Deveris, and said he was 33 years of age.

According to the story told to police, the two couples were going to Pittsburgh where the men expected to find employment. When they reached here, the first couple sold the automobile and proceeded alone.

Louisville authorities were notified of the case, and an investigation is under way.

Censor Bill Defeated

This week included: The Hadden joint resolution, proposing a constitutional amendment permitting limited classification of property for taxation purposes; the Herbert bill, amending the "blue-sky" act by throwing additional safeguards around Ohio investors in securities; the Marshall bill, recodifying the state's general corporation code; the Johnson bill increasing compensation for slaughtered tubercular cattle; the Ackerman bill, increasing the pay of guards at various state institutions; the Johnson bill, enlarging the power of the state utilities commission to require public utilities to install safety devices; and the Mrs. Van Wyk bill, setting up a centralized parole board in the state welfare department.

Concur in Senate Amendments

Of these measures, all go to the house except the Hadden resolution which, having already been adopted by the house, goes to the governor. Concurring in senate amendments, the house this week sent to the governor the Rohe-Morgan bill which authorizes the governor to appoint a commission empowered to buy, or erect, a state office building near the State house here. The house passed the Able bill authorizing governor Myers Y. Cooper and a commission, with a band, of the 37th division, to attend the dedication of Ohio battle monuments in France this summer. The bill, which carries an appropriation of $25,000, was sent to the senate.

The senate adopted the Kuhns joint resolution providing for a legislative testimonial to the Wright brothers on the 25th anniversary of their first airplane flight. The resolution, acted upon favorably in committee, is scheduled to be adopted by the house next week.

Adjournment in April

The Ackerman resolution proposing a senatorial probe of activities in the state agricultural and highway departments during the administration of Governor Vic Dinahy, is under consideration by the senate.

Senator Allan G. Aigler, Huron county, offered a joint resolution to encourage display of the American flag on state and school buildings and in homes on Mothers' day, Sunday, May 12. Representative Bert Shephard, Brown county introduced a joint resolution memorializing congress to enact a "truth-in-fabrics" law.

The general appropriation bill, authorizing expenditure of about $66,000,000 state funds during the coming two years to defray expenses of state governmental activities, is expected to be introduced in the house Monday or Tuesday by the house finance committee. While house leaders said they thought the work of the present session may end during the first week in April, senatorial leaders expressed belief that adjournment will come a week or two later.

In anticipation of it the entire addition of the War Cry, the organization's journal, was given over to testimonials and estimates of their outstanding leader by surviving associates last week.

SEVEN KNOWN DEAD IN STORM

Scores Injured and Heavy Property Damage Reported.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 23.—(INS)—Seven dead, scores injured and property damage that will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars was the known toll today of freakish tornadoes which swept over wide-separated parts of the south yesterday.

Meanwhile heavy rain fell over wide areas in Georgia and Alabama, causing already-swollen streams to rise rapidly, and threaten to leave their banks. In Alabama the rain hampered rehabilitation work after the recent flood.

Eight Negro children were killed and eight others were injured when a cyclone demolished a school building at Merrelltown, Ala. A boy was killed at Small Creek, N. C., and a farmer was killed by lightning at Alpharetta, Ga.

Alexandria, La., suffered a $100,000 property loss from high winds. Pell City, Ala., received a six-inch rainfall. Chattahoochee and Conaunaula, Ga., Maxwellborn, Ala., and Wilson, N. C., reported twisters which caused much property loss but no toll in life.

50 BELIEVED DEAD IN KINLOCH MINE

PARNASSUS, Pa., Mar. 23.—Mine rescue crews expected to bring to the surface today all remaining victims of the gas explosion in the Valley Camp Coal company's Kinloch mine near here.

Many rescue men insisted that the death toll will exceed 50. Forty-five dead have been accounted for, all but one of whom were killed below the surface. The other was working on the tipple and was burned to death.

Four separate investigations are under way, but they will have to be satisfied with gathering information from families of the victims and from officials until the last rescue crew reports that all sections of the mine have been penetrated.

MISSION CHIEF TO SPEAK HERE

The Rev. John Solomon, of the New Covenant Mission, Pittsburgh, will occupy the pulpit of the Church of the Nazarene, St. Clair avenue, at 10.45 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. tomorrow. THREE BURNED AS GAS BLAST WRECKED STORE

Explosion in Columbus Building Rocks District.

COLUMBUS, Mar. 23.—Three men suffered severe burns when a gas explosion today wrecked and set on fire a West Towne street grocery store in which they were employed.

Removed to Mount Carmel hospital where their condition was reported as serious, the injured men are Walter Wingert, butcher, Hugh Stinson, clerk, and Albert Harlow, store manager.

Window, doors and the roof of the building were blown out by the force of the explosion, which was felt throughout the entire district.

Fire which followed the explosion was quickly extinguished by firemen. Stock in the grocery store and the equipment of a barber shop located in the same building were damaged by both the blast and the fire.

Cause of the blast was told by Stinson after being treated at the hospital. He said Wingert had gone to the stove in the rear of the store to burn paper. The explosion occurred, he said, when Wingert opened the door of the stove.

All three men threw their hands to their faces and hastened from the store to a nurses' home nearby. The barber shop had not been opened. Investigators found that the only gas flame in the building was under a tank in the barber shop. It was believed that the escaping gas came either from the tank jet or from a leak in the pipe somewhere in the building.

Rev. Father Sauer Announces Holy Week Services.

The Rev. Father William J. Sauer will have charge of the Palm Sunday services tomorrow in the Sacred Heart Catholic church, Fourth street and Indiana avenue, marking the beginning of Holy Week.

First mass tomorrow will be celebrated at 8 o'clock with the reading of the Passion in English whilst the celebrant reads it in low tone in Latin. Palms will be blessed and distributed before the 10 o'clock mass. Due to the long services, including the procession and reading of the Passion, a brief sermon will be given. Vespers and a sermon on the "Passion of Our Lord from the Court of Pilate to Calvary Hill," to be followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, will comprise the night services.

Holy Thursday services will consist of high mass at 8 o'clock, to be followed by a procession to the repository. Mass of the pre-sanctified will be celebrated at 8 o'clock on Good Friday. Previous to the mass there will be the reading of the Passion in English, and the uncovering and veneration of the cross. From noon to 3 o'clock, the three-hour agony of Christ on the cross will be commemorated. Stations of the cross will be recited at 2:30. Friday night at 7:30, a sermon on the "Last Seven Words" will be given by the Rev. Father Sauer.

A statue of the dead Savior, which arrived this week, will be exposed throughout Thursday and Friday. The public is invited to visit the church and view the statue, especially on Friday night, when the church will be darkened with the exception of the light reflecting on the statue resting in the sepulcher.

Saturday morning at 7 o'clock blessing of fire, Easter candle and baptismal water will take place, to be followed with mass at 9 o'clock. On Easter Sunday morning Resurrection mass will be celebrated at 8 o'clock and low mass at 10 o'clock. Vespers and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be held at 7:30.

Short Talk by a Thoughtful Mother. An Indiana mother tells this: "We find nothing to compare with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds. My little lad had trouble with his bronchial tubes from his third year, but since we started giving him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound we have been able to control it. We know there is nothing to compare with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound." The very name tells a story. Good also for croup (spasmodic) and troublesome night coughs. Ask for it. ## Pottery City Week By Week

With Apologies to O. O. McIntyre

M. S. Simms, former potter, and for many years a liveryman in Pittsburgh before automobiles came into their present vogue, perhaps enjoys a closer acquaintanceship with Andrew Mellon, world known financier, one of the richest men in America and now serving as secretary of the treasury under a third president of the United States.

Following a period in East Liverpool potteries, Simms went to the Smoky City, and upon a plot of ground which he leased from Mr. Mellon built a then modern livery barn in which he kept the best carriages procurable. He thus had a clientele that included the first families of the Pennsylvania city.

Thus it came about that Mr. Mellon frequently with other members of his family utilized the barn. For a while, at least, the banker discontinued his own equipments for riding because it was equally or more convenient to draw from Simms's equipages.

Thus Simms came to know the present secretary as well as his brother, William Mellon. Indeed, he had known also their father, the late Judge Mellon. Incidentally, he was intimately acquainted with many of the city's then leading personages which included the late former Secretary of State Philander H. Knox, the late Judge Reed, father of Senator David B. Reed, Judge Carpenter and others.

Just a few weeks ago Simms had occasion to visit his son, Dudley, who is located in Pittsburgh. During his stay he called on a number of his former friends in the city.

It is quite possible that John Manor, head of the Golding flint mill, the business of which frequently calls him to Maine and almost all other sections of the country, knows President Herbert Hoover about as well as any other East Liverpool citizen. It so happens that they have been thrown together on occasions in Washington. He thus has had a close-up of the nation's chieftain.

From the time when the former cabinet member was first mentioned for his present place of distinction, Manor has unqualifiedly declared he was fitted as few ever in the place for the duties of president. "His ability will make itself apparent and he will make one of the country's greatest presidents," Manor says.

Something of the changes that come about in politics may be noted in the fact that Postmaster General Walter Brown managed the primary campaign for Theodore Roosevelt against President Taft in the spring of 1912. When Taft visited East Liverpool he was introduced to the public by Attorney Ben Bennett. In 1920, Brown contested the senatorial nomination with the late Frank B. Willis and Judge Wana-maker. As a candidate he visited East Liverpool and on one of his speaking occasions here was introduced by Bennett. And it was Taft, now chief justice, who administered the oath to President Hoover. Doubtless Brown stood not far away. Of the present cabinet only Brown and Secretary of Labor Davis have ever been in East Liverpool unless on some occasion in the passing years. Secretary Mellon has passed through or stopped here while driving somewhere.

During the time when he accomplished his outstanding feat as one of the Americans fighting in the Argonne Woods, Sergeant Alvin York was in the army commanded by Major General Summerall, now the chief of staff with headquarters in Washington. It so happened that General Summerall spoke in the Port Pitt hotel in Pittsburgh at a banquet at the same time that the sergeant was speaking in East Liverpool. Thus they were perhaps closer together without knowing it than they had been for a long interim previously.

Maplewood And McKinley Quints Capture Cage Championships

Win Final Tourney Contests

McKinley 7th, Sixth Street Fight Losing Battles.

Almost 500 grade school basketball fans made the new public auditorium a bedlam of racket last night as Maplewood defeated McKinley, 19 to 9, for the seventh grade cage championship of the city and McKinley eighth graders triumphed over Sixth streets for the title in their class.

Both contests, hard fought, replete with good basketball plays executed by the city's future stars, were above the average.

In the opening clash of the night Maplewood took the lead in the opening period and was never headed, gradually increasing their advantage as the contest lengthened. Shaw, Kirkham and Brown were outstanding for the winners while Wilson, Laughlin and Moninger were important factors for the losers.

McKinley-Sixth street came was, perhaps, a trifle closer than the score shows, the Sixth street passers making the tournament favorites step on it all the way.

Wotring, Smith and Cullen for McKinley, Johnson, N. Sinclair and Wells, for Sixth street, were the big guns.

In an exhibition preceding the title tilts, Central Eighth grade team No. 1 won from Central No. 2, 28 to 18.

Oxford Crew Is Defeated By Cambridge

Each Has Won 40 Races In 100 Years; One Was Even.

BY F. A. WRAY.

PUTNEY, Eng., March 23.—Cambridge university celebrated the centenary of the famous Oxford-Cambridge boat race today by decisively beating Oxford in this historic rowing contest on the River Thames.

Cambridge won by seven boat lengths.

A crowd of nearly 1,500,000 people that lined both sides of the river set up a thunderous cheer that rolled up and down the length of the 4 1/4 mile course between Putney and Mortlake when Cambridge, after getting away behind its opponent, began to forge ahead.

At the end of the first mile the light blue oarsmen (Cambridge) were leading by a quarter of a boat length.

At the end of the second mile the Cambridge crew were one and one-half boat lengths ahead of their dark blue (Oxford) opponent.

At the end of the third mile Cambridge was three boat lengths in the lead. This lead was gradually extended.

The dark blue oarsman could not stand the terrific pace. Their stroke weakened and at the finish they were seven boat lengths behind the powerful Cambridge crew.

Cambridge's victory evened up the score with Oxford. In the last 100 years the race has been rowed 81 times. Cambridge and Oxford has each won 40 times. The contest in 1877 was a dead heat.

The time of the Cambridge crew was 19 minutes 25 seconds.

The Cambridge oarsmen finished fairly fresh. The Oxford oarsmen were exhausted.

DEMPSEY'S WIFE TO BE COMMUTER

NEW YORK, March 23.—Estelle Taylor of the films, wife of Jack Dempsey, said today that she expects to become a commuter on an extensive scale, now that her husband's promotional activities will cause him to spend much time in Detroit and New York.

"Jack and I are going to Detroit Monday," she said. "While there we will see about getting a home. We also have been house hunting in Long Island as Jack will be in New York a great deal of the time. Next month we intend to sell our home in Hollywood. I suppose when we do that they will start that old rumor that Jack and I are breaking up which, of course, is nonsense.

"I probably will become a long distance commuter—New York to Detroit to Los Angeles. I'd get myself an aeroplane if Jack would let me ride in one. I'm air minded but he isn't—as far as I'm concerned."

McLarnin Victor In Tame Tilt

Miller Stays in His Shell During 10-round Bout.

By DAVID J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Mar. 23.—Those desperate one-shot men, Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller, were killers in cold-blood on former occasions, but last night they were just a couple of small bore airguns that shot off ten rounds of blanks before a crowd whose distinction only was exceeded by its profound apathy. Yes, just a couple of small bores they were, weighing 133 1/2 and 133 1/2 pounds, and this really was too bad because they encouraged the greatest crowd that ever saw a fight in Madison Square Garden, 22,000, to come out and suffer the anguish of which only a disillusioned fight crowd is capable.

There was considerable more than $111,000, a local record for ten-dollar fights, inside the windows out back at the dead line, and this money was to see considerably less than $11 worth of fighting. McLarnin did nearly all of the shooting while Miller attended very carefully to all of the showing, and as usual, they paid off the former. McLarnin won eight of the ten rounds, trying very earnestly to bound a K. O. off a chin that seldom, if ever, was there.

Miller donated more weight than the official figure showed and his evident reaction was to take no chances. He succeeded, in fact, in taking less than that, he never came out of his capsule, except on rare and very temporary occasions. On the last of these, he took a look at the time-clock in the last minute of play and then lashed out with that famous left hook of his, upon which McLarnin showed his appreciation by punching Raymond dizzy.

That was about all the mugs got for their evening away from home and mother, and if it was $111,000 worth then John L. Sullivan was a window dresser.

The verdict completely reversed the order of the finish at Detroit the first time this pair was out. The fight last night was two innocuous, too dispiriting, to mean anything except pain to the beholders. This fellow Miller evidently isn't a successful repeater. He arose from the Axminster number of times finally to clip Tommy Grogan—there's a name for your shirt bosom—but when they brought them back for another, nothing happened in large quantities. It was much the same last night, only more so. In fact the only thing comparable with it, in the matter of advance interest in lack of action, was the terrible Maloney-Delaney "bust" of several years ago.

Miller has done most of his fighting around Chicago and the middle west. But I am certain he is well acquainted in New Haven. Nobody else would have taken that "hold em Yale" thing so literally. He was impressive in only one round, the fourth, in which it seemed possible for him to miss McLarnin with a straight left. I presume this is the reason he abandoned these tactics immediately. Anybody he made almost no fight of any kind, except in spasmodic flashes; he grabbed, he held, he covered, he ducked. But he didn't fight. There are a lot of smart men in the world. But none of them yet has discovered a way to win a fight without fighting.

For a time, neither of them fought, in fact, they spent more than the first two minutes doing nothing, a fact which would have obtained all of the available air for a couple of preliminary boys. The rest of the affair wasn't that bad, but it wasn't enough to figure in the grand total. No blood was spilled. Nobody had even his feelings hurt. Miller was cautioned five times for hitting low and repeated the punch possibly five times more, but McLarnin never complained. He seemed to sense the fact that he was due to win this one by himself, and, besides, a better sportsman doesn't live.

And from the third round on, he was always trying with that right of his. It scored in third, fifth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth, but this Miller is tougher than his style of fighting last night seemed to warrant. He never was in the slightest distress. Miller's left hook was in the money several times, particularly in the fourth and eighth rounds, but James showed no distress, either.

As a matter of fact, all of the distress was outside the ring.

Eddie Collins, Veteran of 23 Campaigns, Nears End of Trail

Oldest Active Player in League Since Cobb Retired; Looks Back Upon Career With Pleasure.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 23.—

"I'm nearing the end of the baseball trail as far as active playing is concerned. But I don't feel badly about it. I've enjoyed every moment of my big league career."

Eddie Collins of the Philadelphia Athletics, one of the greatest second basemen the game has seen, made this statement to the writer today as he sat on the bench at the local ball park and discussed his experience on the diamond over the past decade.

Collins is now assisting Connie Mack in managing the Athletics. He still is on the active players' roster but he will not be a regular this season.

"I expect to break into the lineup at second occasionally," said Collins, "but the truth is I am gradually easing out. I was hurt in Chicago in 1926 and that was the beginning of the end for me."

Twenty-Third Year

"This is my twenty-third year in baseball. I am the oldest active player in the American League now that Ty Cobb has retired. Over a stretch of twenty-one years I played in 100 games or more a season. The first time I fell below 100 games was in 1926 when I was injured. I played in 96 that year. Last season I dropped down to 39 odd games and this year I may go below that. My chief value to the team will be in an advisory capacity and as a pinch hitter. I can hit but my legs are not as good as they used to be. I can still get around pretty well at that, as I do not take on much weight."

Collins declared that he looks back upon his career with pleasure. He said he played in six world series, four with the Philadelphia Athletics and two with the Chicago White Sox, a club he managed a few years back.

"What was the best team you have played with?" Collins was asked.

"The 1919 Chicago team was offensively the greatest club I was ever a member of," he replied. "That's the team, you know, that went wrong—the team that was made up of players who 'threw' the world series of 1919 to the Cincinnati Reds. That was a wonderful team for scoring runs and winning ball games."

The Old Athletics

"The 1924 and 1914 Philadelphia Athletics was the best balanced all round club that I ever played with. We had the well-known infield of McNinis, Collins, Barry and Baker, and great pitchers in Bender, Plank and Combs. And Joe Bush was just becoming a mastery pitcher. This club was one for all and all for one."

"I look back with more pleasure to the days I spent with the A's than with the White Sox. The A's were a more harmonious team than the 1919 White Sox."

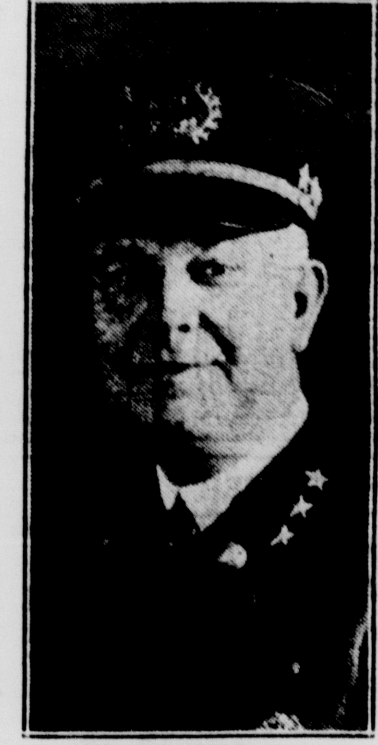

"I had twelve years in Chicago. I certainly was treated splendidly by the public of Chicago and by the press. In the two years I managed the White Sox I was given the best co-operation from the players. But still my heart always was with the A's. Connie Mack had been my first manager and he always treated me wonderfully. I could not help but have a warm spot in my heart for him."

No Future Plans.

Collins said he never means from members of the so-called "Black Sox"—the branded eight that were ousted from the game for "sloughing" the world's series in 1919. Collins was loath to discuss them, saying he felt sorry for the plight of a few of them, notably Buck Weaver, the third baseman, and Joe Jackson, the heavy hitting outfielder.

"Weaver was the greatest third baseman I have ever seen with the exception of Jimmy Collins, the old third sacker of the A's," said Collins. "I never saw a player who got as much enjoyment out of playing the game as Buck did. It must have broken Weaver's heart to have been ruled out of the diamond."

Collins remarked that the flitfled Black Sox had one player who would have developed into a truly great pitcher. That was Lefty Williams whom Collins regarded as a much

Chief Hugh McDermott.

Against Irish Tommy Harris, Edwards had no one to hit. Harris refused to let himself get hit, something on the order of Ray Miller last night as he kept out of the way of Jimmy McLarnin's gloves.

Edwards' most recent bout with Popic was two weeks ago in Wheeling. Edwards' victory was decisive enough the first time but he made it even more so on the latter occasion. Popic was holding, clinching and generally dogging it most of the way.

Popic weighed 145. But McCarthy will have trouble getting in at 148 and without doubt will have a few pounds' weight advantage on Edwards when they scramble next week.

But if Edwards can get over McCarthy, his prospects for bigger and better coin of the realm will be brighter. He has a semi-final in prospect in Wheeling with a substantial purse boost in it for him.

But the Chester boy is of a philosophical turn of mind. He's rabidly determined to fight no more so-called set-ups.

"I can't fight, I want to know it, and the sooner I find it out the better," he says. At any rate his fight with McCarthy will give not only himself but the rest of the local ring-siders a pretty good line on his ability.

Jess Hoak, the McKeesport welter who knocked out Ray Mitchell here last Monday, ran out on Edwards. Matchmaker Ray Fouts of the Valley A. C., immediately after Hoak's one-round victory, went to his dressing room and completed all arrangements for his bout with Edwards, everything but the actual signing of the contracts. A half hour later when Fouts appeared with the documents, Hoak had changed his mind. After agreeing to meet Edwards he began to make inquiries. Someone told him that Edwards had never lost a fight—which was true. He also began to quibble about weight and the upshot was that he cancelled his previous

LOS ANGELES, March 23.—The Cubs complaining of "leg weariness" today following their third victory in a row over the Detroit Tigers. Turning a dozen safe hits into 13 runs yesterday, the Cubs finished with five runs to spare. Nehf and Bush were nixed for 15 hits, but the Tigers could get only 8 tallies from them. Barnes and Vangilder pitched for Detroit.

Macks Win, 27 to 18.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 23.—By a sudden shift of plans, Capt. Eddie Collins and his squad of Athletics who defeated Montreal 27 to 18 here yesterday in a tenth-inning rally will play the Newark Bears today and tomorrow at St. Augustine. The other squad of A's will tackle the Cardinals in Miami today and tomorrow. Collins' hitting started the A's on their rally which won the game with nine runs in the tenth inning.

FACULTY CAGERS DOWN JUNIORS

High school faculty cagers were hot again last night. The Profs tossed in a flock of field goals to lick the Junior class cagers, 28 to 27, which was as close as they make them.

BISHOP TRACK STARS DROPPED

DELAWARE, O., March 23.—Names of eight track athletes at Ohio Wesleyan university appeared on the ineligible list today. The cinder and board performers, four of them veterans, failed to maintain the scholastic record set for athletes, George Gauthier, director of athletics, stated in explaining the suspension action.

Among the men disqualified are James Opter, Lorain, high jump record holder at the university; Loyal Phillips, Cleveland, who has twice shattered the Edwards gymnasium indoor-shot-put record; Hugh Johnson, pole vaulter, and Herbert Augenstein, crack two-miler.

Edwards Is Off Set-Ups; Ready For M'Carthy Bout

Meets Pittsburgher Who Gave Teddy Welch Good Fight; Bout May Provide Good Line On His Future Chances.

ACCUSED of having fought nobody but a bunch of bums and set-ups, to hear some of them tell it, in piling up a record of victories which has yet to be marred by a single loss, Freddy Edwards, Chester welterweight, will step a few notches out of his class Tuesday night at Wellsville to fight Jack McCarthy, the Pittsburgh veteran.

They are scheduled to go six arrangements and refused to go on rounds in the semi-final to the Young Ruddy-Teddy Welch Main event.

For a beginner in the professional boxing racket, Edwards has come along in wonderful style, numbering among his victories two over Johnny Popic, who, prior to his meetings with the Chester lad, was rated as a real comer in Wheeling ring circles. Popic unquestionably is one of the best opponents that Edwards has tackled but both these fights were staged in Wheeling.

Perhaps Edwards has fought a punk or probably two but that's not entirely his fault.

The fact remains, though, that, in his particular class, he's fighting no punk Tuesday night when he rattles his gloves off McCarthy's sturdy anatomy in the Wellsville arena.

McCarthy fought Teddy Welch here a short time ago and gave Welch a good battle although Welch probably didn't bore into McCarthy as he might have done against Rudy or some of his other natural rivals.

Against Irish Tommy Harris, Edwards had no one to hit. Harris refused to let himself get hit, something on the order of Ray Miller last night as he kept out of the way of Jimmy McLarnin's gloves.

Edwards' most recent bout with Popic was two weeks ago in Wheeling. Edwards' victory was decisive enough the first time but he made it even more so on the latter occasion. Popic was holding, clinching and generally dogging it most of the way.

Popic weighed 145. But McCarthy will have trouble getting in at 148 and without doubt will have a few pounds' weight advantage on Edwards when they scramble next week.

But if Edwards can get over McCarthy, his prospects for bigger and better coin of the realm will be brighter. He has a semi-final in prospect in Wheeling with a substantial purse boost in it for him.

But the Chester boy is of a philosophical turn of mind. He's rabidly determined to fight no more so-called set-ups.

VANGUARD

A Highly Amusing Story of a Romance
Aboard a Millionaire's Yacht.

By Arnold Bennett

Harriet was delighted. "But why?" she innocently asked. "I thought you'd be coming out." "How silly of you!" she commented with superiority. "Instead of that I expect you preferred to go on galivanting with that fellow Sutherland."

His jealousy filled her with bliss. "I do hate jealousy—and jealous people," she said firmly. "There's nothing I despise more."

"Oh! Isn't there? Well, it's your fault. And I should like to know what time you went to bed. You weren't in your cabin at half past two."

"Who told you that?"

"Nobody. I knocked at your door at half past two, and there was no answer. So I peeped in. The place was empty."

"A nice thing!" Harriet said. "Suppose I'd been in bed and asleep."

"I shouldn't have minded."

"No doubt. But I should. What did you want with me in the middle of the night?"

"To talk to you. I felt I must talk to you."

He made this plaintive moan with a naively insinuating air that was irresistible to Harriet—or nearly so. Never had she beheld a male creature looking so nice. "You don't look very nice this morning," she observed judiciously. "It's your hair. You've forgotten it. And as for that necktie you've chosen—"

"Harriet! He stood up. "When can I talk to you?"

The Magnet

It was of the highest importance that she should hurry off at once, for much depended upon her promptitude of action at this juncture. But she was held within the room by an invisible power. She simply was unable to depart, though invaluable moments were flying. "What do you want to talk to me about? What was it that was so desperately urgent that you wanted to see me about it in the middle of the night?"

"You know."

"I don't."

"I thought we understood each other."

"Look here," she said. "I've no time to watch you beating about the bush in this style. Why can't you say what you mean? Did you want to talk to me or to kiss me? Let's get at it."

"Both."

"As a preliminary to marriage?"

"Of course." Luke's glance lightened, and he blushed deliciously.

"I see. How old are you?"

"Twenty-eight. At least I shall be next month."

"You don't act as if you were a day older than 18. How old do you imagine I am?"

"About the same."

"Oh! Well, I'm exactly a hundred. Have you any private means?"

"No. I can't say I have."

"Don't say it then. What salary do you earn?"

"Five hundred a year."

"I've got more than twice as much as that myself," said Harriet. "I suppose you'd expect me to keep you."

"Harriet!"

"Any prospects—of coming into a title for instance?"

"Not a bit. My eldest brother, Amberley has four sons."

"I see. Of course you're an honorable, but we couldn't eat your 'honorable' for breakfast, could we? ... Yes, well. Anything else to say?"

"Harriet, you're awful!" Luke pleaded.

"I doubt if I am," she said, as if impartially weighing the charge against her. "I'm only looking the facts in the face. I question whether you've ever tried to look a fact in the face in all your life. You'd make a splendid, reliable husband, wouldn't you? The sort of rock-man that a woman could always count on for support!"

Luke continued to gaze at her. His eyes shone—mere morning humidity, nothing else. Only a table separated them. Harriet saw the precise locality on the Persian carpet where, kneeling, and she kneeling, he had mentioned to her that his thoughts dwelt upon the pleasures of kissing her. The way round the table was extremely short. Harriet's keys clinked. She was moving. No, she was not moving—something was moving her in spite of herself. Luke was not Luke, he was a magnet.

"I am about to be ridiculous," she said to herself.

But just then she heard a cough—of the kind generally described as "discreet"—beyond the double doors, one of which was ajar. It was a feminine cough. Luke started violently.

"Doesn't it occur to you that you are ridiculous?" Harriet murmured in a half-whisper. And hastened finging out of the room, and shut the door after her with a great bang. Immediately he was alone the Honorable Luke became a man, and began to swear in the most objectionable, coarse fashion, and stamped about, and then fell to cursing not merely Harriet but the whole of her sex.

The Meeting

Within the next minute there was enacted, on the promenade deck, one of the most sublime and terrible scenes that ever happened, either on board a yacht or in the entire annals of domesticity.

Mr. Septimius Sutherland, in his dressing-gown, had nervously walked away from Lord Furber to the extreme after limit of the deck. The distance was perhaps less than twenty-five feet. Lord Furber, in his dressing-gown, had risen from his chair, irresolute for once; he was in half a mind to go after Septimius and square things up, and in a half a mind to stay where he was and let things rip. Septimius as usual had many minds, each independently functioning; but the minds of Septimius had little or no bearing on the crisis at hand.

Three seamen had begun to polish the brass in the neighborhood of the togas. The Baron would have shooped them away violently in no time, but not the Baron himself dared disturb the order of the Vanguard's working day, which, as with all self-respecting vessels afloat, was an unalterable and implacable as a succession of astronomical phenomena. Brass had to be polished, and it had to be polished at a certain hour—yes, even though the ship went down—and until the signal sounded for the crew's breakfast the cleansing and the rubbing must continue at no matter what cost of inconvenience and constraint to the pipe-paying owner.

The Baron was indeed moving toward Mr. Sutherland, and facing the rising sun, when he heard footsteps behind him on the stairs, and turned sharply, and his eyes beheld the form and likeness of Maidie his wife, Lady Furber.

At first he thought his eyes, those generally truthful witnesses, were lying to him; but he could not distrust them for more than a moment; he indubitably recognized his wife's hair, nose, glinting glance, her dress, and the shape of her muscular ankles.

Never had Lord Furber been so surprised, startled, shocked, overset, bewildered and infuriated. Maidie had got the better of him—he knew not by what chicane and conspiracy and deceit!

He had in truth heard of her arrival in Monte Carlo; and as he very particularly desired not to meet her at that delicate juncture of their conjugal relation, he had fled; his fleeing would serve her right, but more important, it would avoid a battle on ground which was not of his own choosing. He had decided on flight in an instant; he had taken measures to keep secret the preparations for the flight.

The departure had been effectively achieved long before any guest in any hotel could possibly have left his bedroom.

And yet here the woman most brazenly was. The impudence of the dangerous creature! Come to obtain personally, had she, some explanation of the singular incidents on board which had been described in his own morning paper, and super-described and embroidered by other newspapers? No doubt she intended to use those incidents as a lever for forcing him to yield in the matter of their quarrel!

Well, she had asked for trouble, and she should have trouble, and more than she wanted. He would destroy her, annihilate her. His marital prestige was at stake, and in comparison with that, what else could count? He clenched his fists; his face was contorted. A hurricane, a tempest, a typhoon was about to descend on the devoted yacht. The Baron cared for nobody and nothing save the satisfaction of a tremendous insult.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of my dear husband, James L. Waggle, who departed from this life four years ago today,
March 23rd, 1925.
When the evening shades are falling
And I'm sitting all alone,
In my heart there comes a longing,
If he only could come home.
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
I little thought his death so near.
His pleasant smile for all he met,
His kind heart I shall never forget.
His sweet to know that we shall meet
Where sorrow is no more.
And that the one I loved so dear
Has only gone before.
Sadly missed by his wife,
JES. JAMES WAGGLE.

HEED GOSPEL, PASTOR WARNS

Rev. S. E. West in Free Methodist Pulpit.

"If the means of grace are neglected"

ed Christians will find that grace itself has vanished from their perspective," declared the Rev. S. E. West, pastor, at the Avondale Free Methodist church, Avondale street, last night.

He will speak again tonight and twice on Sunday. His subjects for tomorrow are: Morning, "The Need of Perfect Love;" evening, "The Future Punishment."

"Some habits, such as forgetting and neglecting grow on people," he said. "To neglect health is to have none. Many are in their graves because of such a neglect."

"We often neglect friends when

REVIVAL MEET IN AUDITORIUM

Evangelist Clyde B. Morse.

Eleventh of the series of Sunday afternoon meetings in charge of Evangelist Clyde B. Morse, director of the Community Tabernacle association of Pittsburgh, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow in the public auditorium at Second and Washington streets. The campaign will close on Easter Sunday.

Tomorrow's service will take the form of a divine healing meeting. Evangelist Morse will preach on the subject, "What Does the Exercise of the Right of Divine Healing Mean to a Christian?" Music will be in charge of a quintet, consisting of the three Evans children, Chester vocalists; their father, Alex Evans, and Mr. Morse.

Four persons were anointed by Evangelist Morse last Sunday.

The auditorium will be raised during the early part of April. The lumber will be shipped to Zettlenople where it will be used in the erection of a tabernacle in which Evangelist Morse will conduct religious services this summer.

prosperous only to find that when a friend is really needed such can not be found.

"The means of grace are necessary if we are to preserve it.

"It is a dreadful thing to hear the gospel and not heed it. It was better far to live in China or among the most heathen peoples in the world than to fail to take heed of God's words to mankind.

"People lack in all lines as they do in religion. It is the preacher's business to say that which God would have him. And it is for the people

'BARREN FRUIT' SERMON TOPIC

Rev. Harry Rodgers Preaches in Church Of God.

That many professors of Christianity, some of them officials in churches, do not bear fruit expected of them was asserted by the Rev. Harry Rodgers, of Cambridge, at the Church of God revival service, West Ninth street, last night. His subject was "Barren Fruit."

Old hymns, especially selected for the occasion by Miss Estella Sprotnan, of Kittanning, Pa., who directed the singing, were sung. She also sang the solo: "Hold to God's Unchanging Hand." Two of the Junior girls of the congregation, Eva Gene Smith and Ethel May Hoyt, sang "Jesus' Little Lamb."

The invocation was made by the Rev. Ethel Hoyt, the pastor of the church.

There will be no services tonight. The Rev. M. Rodgers will preach both in the morning and the evening tomorrow.

He gave a vivid description of orchards and stated that it was their function to bear fruit. He told how sometimes they failed to do so. He also pointed out that some once bearing fruit, on occasion, became barren.

"Christians are like orchards in that they are supposed to bear Christian fruits which are meekness, gentleness, kindness, long-suffering, congeniality, patience and love," he said. "And the kind of fruit that is now borne by them will decide their destiny in eternity."

"The right way to bear Christian fruit is by initially repenting of sins. Then having undergone the process of the new birth to continue ever a student of the Bible while praying sincerely."

"Too many think all they have to do is, perhaps once a Sunday, listen perfunctorily to the preacher in the pulpit while rarely, if ever, reading the Bible, or indulging in prayer."

to take heed. There are thousands of people in eternity who have never heeded the gospel of Christ. And in America there are many who, hearing it, take no heed of it.

"God will ever bless all those taking heed to His words. The same truth is heard by the person saved and the one who perishes. One listened to it and the other did not. The Lord does not trifle. He means what He says. We must believe all in the Bible and not just that in it which suits us."

"The truth of God is valuable. The one who embraces it and the one who does not will meet together at judgment."

People of Germany are using four times as much electricity as before the World war.
